

EHRA Usability Summit – Partnering to Reduce Documentation Burden

EHRA is committed to positively impacting the end-user experience, and the annual Usability Summit is one example of how we collaborate with stakeholders to drive progress. Last year, Summit participants worked in groups to create “personas” to identify a variety of EHR users and their daily workflows and challenges. That exercise led to creation of the publicly available EHRA Persona Library, helping EHR developers better visualize and understand the end-user.

Recognizing that user-centered design focuses on the people who use EHRs, this year, the focus will be on identifying challenges, barriers, and concerns related to supporting documentation requirements in the EHR. EHRA hopes to gain perspectives and insights from stakeholders at this hands-on event, where the goal is to identify actionable next steps and solutions to help drive change toward reducing physician documentation burden.
